

What's the big deal with bigfoot?

Movie producers shouldn't be peddling their political ideas to children.

Children are not influenced positively or negatively by the movies they watch.

It's not up to the movie industry to teach our children what's right and what's wrong.

This is an intentional slap in the face to the oil and gas industry.

Lobbyists hold too much sway in government.

I'm excited to see so many ecologically conscious movies and TV shows these days.

Big companies are not the enemy and movies should stop making them out to be the villains.

Movies these days are brainwashing our children.

Oil and gas companies are evil and corrupt.

This movie is going to shape the way children view oil and gas companies.

Children's movies should always have a moral to the story.

What's the big deal with bigfoot?

hero(s)

sidekick(s)

villain(s)

plot

setting

moral